

A NOTE FROM TARA WEST

This is a comprehensive and phonics-based set of encoding free downloads including instructional cards and printables. Choose from a variety of resources to implement into your phonics lessons, small-group lessons, writing lessons, or as an independent phonics center. This free download includes (5) encoding resources. If you have questions about this packet, reach out to me directly at littlemindsatworkLLC@gmail.com
Word lists found at the back of this download.

Freebie #1

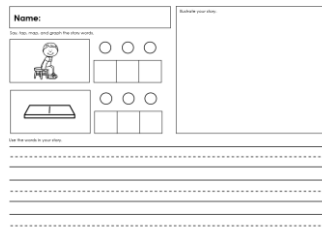

Each card displays the phonics skill, includes an image, and has color-coded dots indicating sounds: green for the beginning sound, yellow for the medial sound, and red for the final sound. These cards are useful for practicing word segmentation and spelling in both whole-group and small-group settings.

Freebie #2

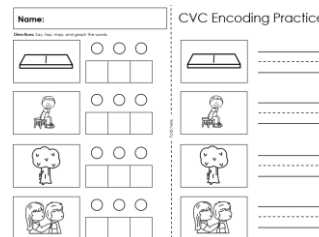

These sheets offer all-in-one resource for paper-and-pencil encoding. Students will say the word, tap out the sounds, map the sounds, write the graphemes in each box, and then spell the word. These worksheets are versatile and can be used in whole-group instruction, small-group activities, or as an independent center.

Freebie #3

These sheets provide a differentiated approach to integrating encoding and writing skills. Students will say the words, tap the sounds, map the sounds, and write the words. They will then use these words to create a story and illustrate it with a picture. These worksheets can be used in whole-group or as a learning center.

Freebie #4

These sheets offer an interactive and engaging method for practicing encoding. The activity begins with the paper folded. Students will say the word, tap and map the sounds, then flip the folded page to write each word. These sheets are perfect for whole-group or as a phonics center.

Freebie #5

These open-ended sheets are designed to support writing through interactive phonics practice. Built-in dots allow students to tap out the sounds in a word, while sound boxes enable them to map the sounds using manipulatives. Both the dots and sound boxes can be utilized throughout their writing for immediate and meaningful application.
